Learned Publishing on ScienceOpen

Press release: 25 May 2021

Learned Publishing is very happy to be joining ScienceOpen's collections so that it can benefit from increased visibility and discovery. The journal publishes peer reviewed original research, updates and informed opinions on all aspects of scholarly publishing.

The journal's Editor-in-Chief, Pippa Smart, commented "It is hugely important that we ensure the greatest visibility for our authors' content, and I am delighted to be working with ScienceOpen and to present our content on their platform."

About Learned Publishing

Learned Publishing publishes peer reviewed research, reviews, industry updates and opinions on all aspects of scholarly communication and publishing. Topics covered include peer review, editorial issues, metrics, business and financial aspects of publishing, open access, marketing and sales, intellectual property research, and country case studies. Written by and published for everyone involved with scholarly and professional communications, our readership includes publishers, vendors, librarians, academics and researchers from around the world.

The journal's vision is to contribute to improved quality and effectiveness in scholarly publishing by providing a source of relevant and authoritative research and opinion.

Learned Publishing (0953-1513) is the journal of the Association of Learned & Professional Society Publishers (ALPSP, <https://www.alpssp.org>), published in collaboration with the Society for Scholarly Publishing (SSP, <https://www.sspnet.org>) by Wiley.

The journal is freely available to all members of both ALPSP and SSP.
