Spotlight on Research and ScienceOpen partner to promote Open Access health journals

Berlin, 8 October 2020

ScienceOpen has partnered with Spotlight on Research (SOR) to bring awareness to Spotlight on Research open access health journals. The journals aim to improve the lives and health of populations by making high-quality, evidence-based health information freely available online. Content from SOR journals is now featured on ScienceOpen in the featured Spotlight on Research Collection to promote the dissemination of their content to a wider base of readers.

There are nine journals by SOR which cover a wide scope of the health sector evidenced by their titles: Public Health, Health Science, Exploratory Research in Health, Clinical Psychology, Mental Health, Yoga, Integrative Health, Climate Change, and Social and Cultural Issues in Health. The search and discovery platform provided by ScienceOpen will put these health-related publications into the context of over 64 million academic publication records, increasing their discoverability. With many different filtering and sorting options, the platform is both user friendly and capable of advanced searches, connecting metadata from SOR journals to other content on the platform. Additionally, the sophisticated user engagement tools, such as reviewing, recommending, and sharing to social media, give readers of SOR the opportunity to interact more easily with the articles and increase the impact of SOR's publications.

Casey Mace Firebaugh, Managing Editor of SOR says, "Spotlight on Research is proud to partner with a discovery platform that has a shared vision of open and accessible research and publishing. We aim to be the preferred publisher of academics and professionals in health-related fields. Working with ScienceOpen increases our visibility of scholars who publish with Spotlight on Research and allows for our evidence-based, peer-reviewed research to be freely accessed by anyone interested in health information."

ScienceOpen CEO Stephanie Dawson says, "We are excited to welcome the addition of the Spotlight on Research Journals to ScienceOpen. SOR reminds us how vital Open Access research is when it comes to health-related topics, and we look forward to directing more researchers to submit to SOR by promoting the journals on our platform."

ScienceOpen is happy to have another partner who is committed to not only publishing open access, but also to looking out for researchers by offering very low APCs, offering discounts to student researchers, and educating about predatory
