

FOR IMMEDIATE PUBLICATION AND DISTRIBUTION

The European Investment Bank creates publication showcase on ScienceOpen

Berlin, February 9th, 2023

Researchers can now discover prestigious publications by the European Investment Bank within the ScienceOpen discovery network. The new EIB Collection includes open access publications covering a wide range of research disciplines.

The European Investment Bank is the world's largest multilateral financial institution and a major provider of climate finance globally. The European Investment Bank has a large portfolio of open access publications aimed at professionals and the general public, including reports, studies, books, essays, and other policy documents.

The publications are critical in supporting the Bank's operations. They analyze the changing economic context, investment opportunities, and risks, and help to define the bank's positioning, strategy and policy in Europe and the rest of the world.

“The European Investment Bank intends to expand the access to its valuable publications repository, extending it to a greater number of users in the academic community.”

ScienceOpen will provide the European Investment Bank with indexing services and support the Bank's mission by placing its research in the context of over 83 million scholarly publications. Through its innovative digital infrastructure and tools, ScienceOpen will assist with research dissemination, and promote the knowledge generated by the EIB on its research and discovery network and beyond.

We are looking forward to supporting the EIB to increase the reach and visibility of the valuable open access resources that they produce.

- Stephanie Dawson, ScienceOpen CEO

The EIB collection on ScienceOpen will provide a glimpse of the bank's research, allowing the scholarly community to better understand the EIB's mission, strategies, and activities.
